Foreword

This special issue of Japan Review is based on a book published in 2001 as Chikoku no tanjō: kindai Nihon ni okeru jikan ishiki no keisei 『遅刻の誕生—近代日本における時間意識の形成—』 (Tokyo: Sangensha 三元社). All of the essays in the Japanese work (with the exception of an article on Meiji calendrical reform) appear here in translation; a few have been modified for presentation in English. These studies represent the product of a team research project on “The Evolution of Time-Consciousness in Modern Japan” conducted at the International Research Center for Japanese Studies during the 1999-2000 academic year.

As guest editors of this volume, we would like to express our heartfelt thanks to Professor James Baxter, Editor-in-Chief of Japan Review, for the countless hours he spent making corrections and stylistic improvements to all the translations. His painstaking labors have enhanced this volume immeasurably.
